Atelier Wolfstone is

ATELIER WOLFSTONE IS A TWO-PERSON GOLDSMITHING ATELIER IN KAATSHEUVEL, THE NETHERLANDS, MAKING HANDMADE FINE JEWELLERY IN SOLID 14K GOLD, 18K GOLD AND STERLING SILVER.

We are Kaat van Doremalen and Huib Stawski. Partners in work and in life, and self-taught goldsmiths.

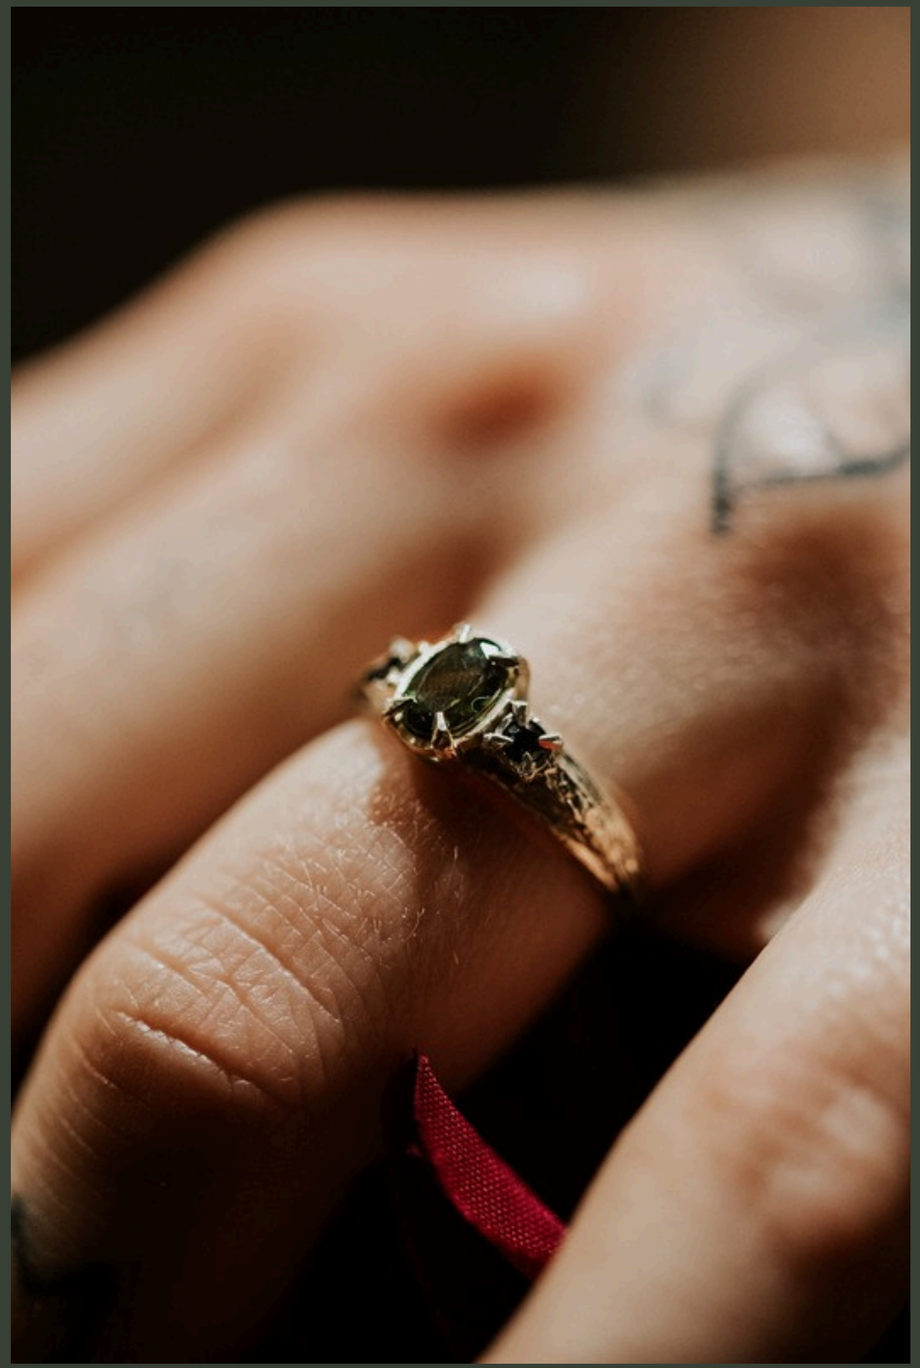

We started at our kitchen table. No inherited company, no formal training, no workshop handed down. We taught ourselves, and built an atelier from there.

Kaat trained as an architect. She designs the work, photographs it and writes about it. Huib handles research, development and the numbers, and works at the bench beside her. Everything that leaves here has been through both pairs of hands.

Atelier Wolfstone

What we do

We make fine jewellery for people who have never quite fitted the usual shelves.

Our work lives in four worlds. Nox Ex Libris for readers of dark fantasy and romantasy. Regina for gothic and cathedral architecture. Curiosity Cabinet for the witchy, the celestial and memento mori. The Heirloom Vault for solid gold made to be passed on.

We design in wax and in Blender, cast and finish in our own atelier, and set our own stones. Every step happens in house, nothing is outsourced.

Collections

The Heirloom Vault: solid gold milestone creations →

Solid 14 and 18 karat gold. Handmade gold rings, pendants and engagement rings for the moments and the people worth holding onto. Heirlooms, made once, worn for decades.

Curiosity Cabinet: witchy, celestial and memento mori jewelry →

A curiosity cabinet you can wear. Memento mori jewellery, occult rings and celestial pendants for those who keep strange and beautiful things.

Nox ex Libris: bookish and fantasy jewelry →

For dark academia readers, the romantasy-obsessed, and anyone who has ever wanted to live inside a book. Rings, pendants and engagement rings inspired by fantasy, cast in silver and gold.

Regina: gothic and cathedral-inspired jewelry →

Architectural jewellery for the modern goth. Gothic rings and statement necklaces in the shape of the cathedrals they come from, built in sterling silver and solid gold.

What we also talk about

Not only about jewellery. We are just as happy talking about the subjects our work comes out of.

Craft and history. Kaat comes from architecture and translates cathedral building into metal. Gothic, medieval, Renaissance and Victorian are the periods we draw on most. We are both self-taught, so nobody handed us a fixed method. We worked ours out ourselves, and you can see it in the work.

Fantasy and bookish culture. We are both avid readers and watchers, and we make for people who live in those worlds.

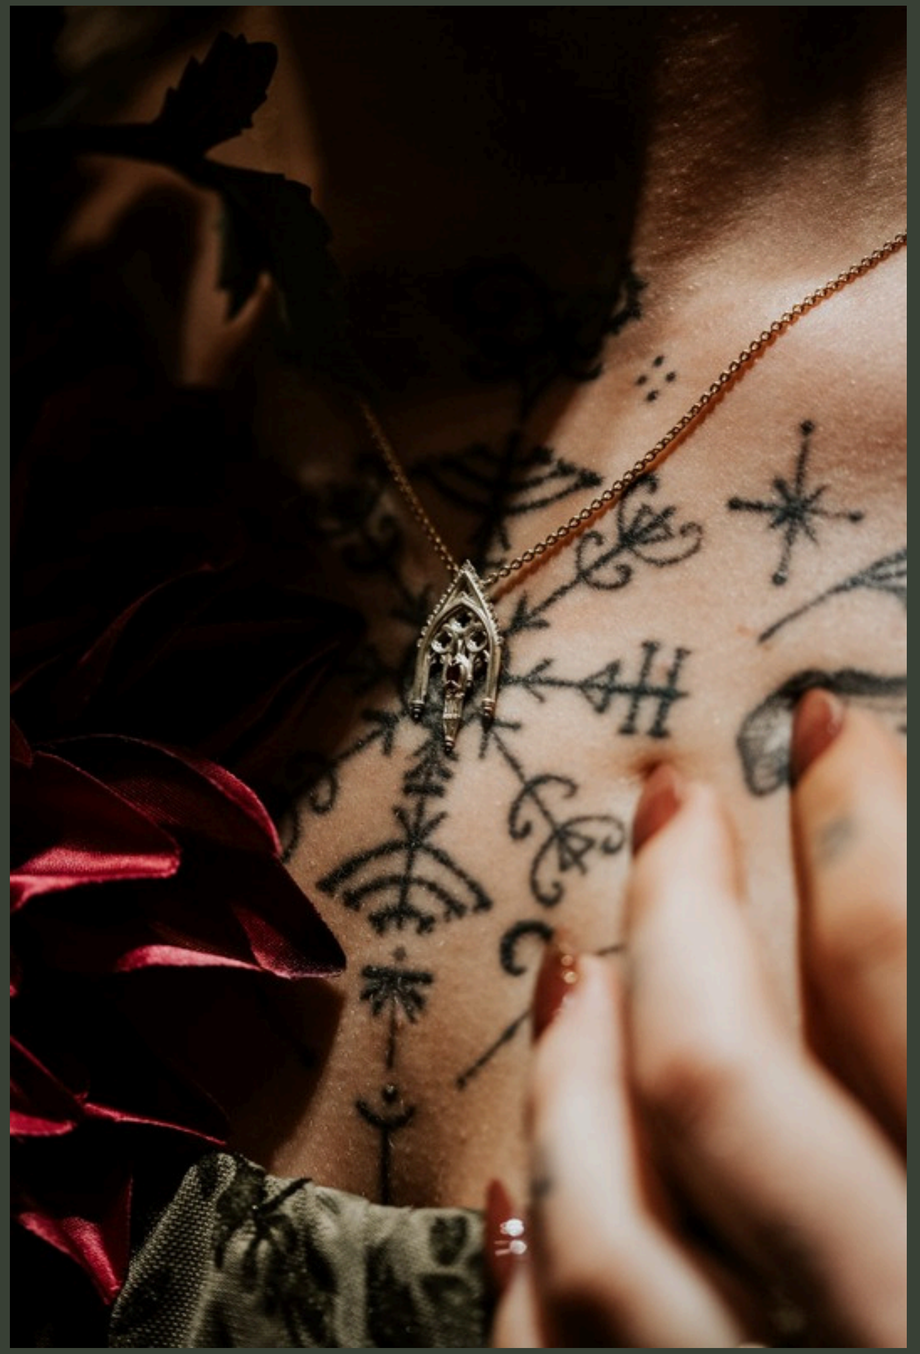

Entrepreneurship as rebellion. Starting your own business is a choice, often because working for a boss does not fit. We speak up for the smallest businesses, including in the PPWR dossier, and we are happy to talk about what that means.

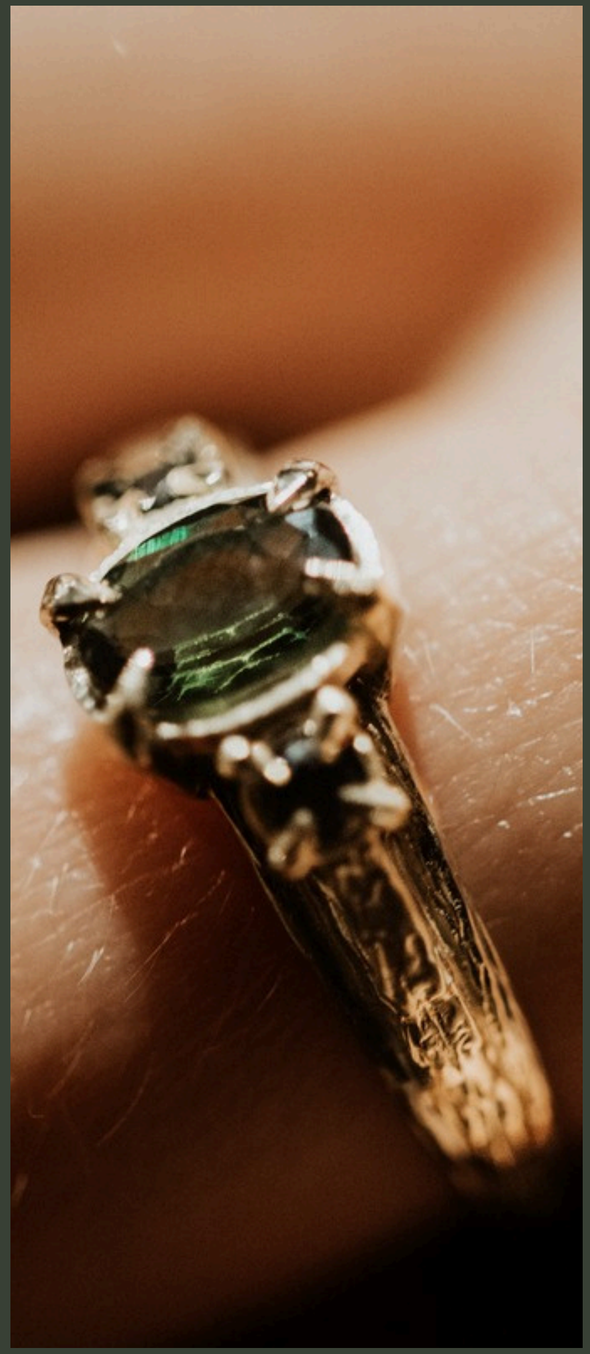

Slow making in an instant world. One engraved line takes minutes, one creation can take weeks. Repair before you replace. Own fewer things, with more meaning.

Who it gets made for. We work made to order, so there are no size limits. We are LGBTQIA+ friendly and we always ask for pronouns. Everyone who comes to our bench in good faith is welcome.

Spiritual practice and the occult. We each have our own practice, which runs through the work in Curiosity Cabinet.
Human rights, sustainability and accessibility are subjects we speak about openly.
